

THE FOX WHO KEPT HIS WORD

A woodland tale about promises and trust

A vibrant, cartoon-style illustration of a fox and a hedgehog in a sunlit meadow. The fox, on the left, is orange with a white chest and tail tip, sitting and waving its right paw. The hedgehog, on the right, is brown and spiny, standing and looking at the fox. The field is filled with green grass and small white and yellow flowers. In the background, there are rolling green hills, a large leafy tree on the right, and a blue sky with fluffy white clouds.

I promise blueberries
by sunset.

I believe you.

Promises feel light at noon...
and heavy when snacks appear.

Trade your promise for destiny!

Destiny
smells illegal.

FENN: No shortcuts on promises.

FENN: I'm a circus now.
Professional.

FENN:
Tomorrow is a different word.

A whimsical illustration of a young boy with brown hair and freckles, wearing a red long-sleeved shirt over a grey t-shirt and blue pants. He is sitting in a small wooden boat on a dark blue river at night. In his left hand, he holds a woven basket filled with red raspberries and blueberries. With his right hand, he holds a wooden oar, reaching towards an otter on the bank. The otter, which is brown with a lighter tan belly and a bushy tail, is standing on a rocky shore and looking up at the boy with a happy expression. The background features a large, leafy tree on the right, its branches hanging over the water. The sky is a deep purple and blue, dotted with many small, glowing yellow stars. The water reflects the lights from the sky and the surrounding foliage. Two speech bubbles are present: one from the boy on the left and one from the otter on the right.

FENN: Later breaks bridges.

OTTER: You could have said later.

Kept words make small foxes feel tall.

I said I would.

You came.

SQUIRREL: Bad for business...
good for friends.

Forest animals ask
Fenn to carry messages.

“OWL-ELDER:
Trust is earned in sunsets kept.”

DOT: Next promise
no juggling berries.

FENN: I promise... to try.

DOT: Hmm.

FENN: Fine. Fully.

Easy promises are noise.
Kept promises are music.

say less,
mean more,
finish always.

Your word is a path others walk on.
Build it strong.

A whimsical illustration of a young boy with brown hair, wearing a red and white shirt, sitting up in bed reading a blue book. He is surrounded by his stuffed animals: a green dinosaur, a large orange fox, and a small hedgehog. In the background, a window shows a sunset with a golden sun and orange clouds. A teddy bear sits on a blue chair by the window, and a purple teddy bear sits on a stack of books. A wooden ladder leans against the wall, and a lamp with a yellow shade sits on a nightstand to the left. A floating head of a man with a mustache and a pink hat is in the upper left corner.

Digi World

The Fox Who Kept His Word.

THE END.

Mean what you say.
Finish what you promise.

The FOX
Who Kept His Word

—  —
Digi World

— premium —