

THE WHISPERING MARKET

A bazaar adventure about listening well.

First stall wins!

First listen
wins.

"And sleeping is boring," you
grumble and sigh,
While staring and staring into
the night's sky.
When all of a sudden the wind
starts to whirl.
The air comes alive. The dog's tail starts to twirl.

BAZA:
Squawk! Rushing is my cardio!

TALA: And my headache.

You think sleeping's boring? That's simply not true!
Guess now's the best time to share something with you.
This something's a secret — a secret I keep.
A secret that fills up your nights while you sleep.

No time
for labels!

Cinnamon or chaos?

★ ★ ★ OWL:
Questions that run
arrive empty.

I heard noise.

Where's the magic key?

“And sleeping is boring,”
you grumble and sigh,
While stealing and staring
into the night’s sky.
When all of a sudden the wind starts to whirl,
The air comes alive.
The dog’s tail starts to twirl.”

One cracker.
Zero wisdom.

Philosophical cracker
please.

Market speaks in small truths.
Hurry only hears its own feet.

Betrayal!!

Maybe labels matter.

TALA: Help first.
Treasure second.

Listening built this.
Not racing.

SAMIR:
I wanted to be fastest.

BAZ:
Character development!

TALA:
You became useful.
Better.

Hasty Hare learned to pause,
and count one, two, three,
before grabbing his treat!

One...
Two...
Three!

Wise kids hear
more than they shout.
Slow ears find doors
that fast feet miss.
Slow ears find doors
that fast feet miss.

THE END.

Pause. Listen. Then choose.
